Clay & Paper Theatre presents

Day Of Delight

A celebration of love, courtship and desire!

June 14, 2008 at Dufferin Grove Park, 2 to 5 PM

Dufferin south of Bloor

Pay-What-You-Can, $10 suggested

Join us the afternoon of Saturday, June 14 for the 6th annual Day of Delight! This celebration of love, courtship and desire presents more than 100 of Toronto's most amorous artists, including whirling dervishes, theatre in English and Portuguese, a community chorus for love, two of Toronto's hottest Samba bands, dance traditions from around the world, and much more!

About Clay & Paper Theatre:

Out amongst the community bake-ovens and lush gardens of Dufferin Grove Park, Clay & Paper Theatre has been changing the world. Completely. Irrevocably. Medieval mystery plays, Punch and Judy shows, African myths, Indonesian shadow puppetry, Native Canadian masks, commedia dell'arte - all these and more have influenced Clay & Paper Theatre. The company is built on the accumulative experience of David Anderson - theatre activist, producer of new Canadian work, and defender of public space since 1969. This is theatre on the ground, for the groundlings, in the park and on the street. This is theatre of exaggeration, of giant puppetry, of satire and wit gone awry. This is a little theatre company asking big questions with humour and irreverence.

This is Clay & Paper Theatre.
